

Royal Portrush is not like the others...

Unlike most Open Championship courses, Royal Portrush does not have massive greens.

St. Andrews, Royal Liverpool, and other memorable Open courses are known for large greens that average over 6,400 square feet.

Royal Portrush breaks the mold. At approximately 5,300 square feet, it is estimated to have the 14th smallest average green size out of all the PGA Tour courses played this year.

Our AI Caddie is projecting Portrush to rank in the top 10 in difficulty when measuring strokes gained on approach (SGAPP) on shots under 150 yards.

Not only do these small greens put major emphasis on SGAPP, but it also makes GIRs gained a viable metric.

We create a simple 50/50 model just using SGAPP and GIR gained while playing on courses with the average green sq. footage being under 5,400 sq. feet.

Use it to target players who excel with their irons while playing on shorter courses.
